France Seizes Spanish Marquis As German Spy After 27 Years

Now Neighbor of Caillaux in Prison in Paris, Accused of Stealing Submarine Plans—Was Long Protected by Powerful Personages

The New York Tribune Foreign Press Bureau

The newest neighbor of M. Caillaux in the "spy corridor" of the prison of the Santé in Paris is the ostensible inventor of the German submarine system—the Marquis d'Equieville, Spanish subject, engineer for the Krupp and naturalized Frenchman. He had apparently been actively engaged in the spy business for twenty-seven years, but his career came to an abrupt end on April 22, when he was arrested and thrown into prison.

Five in Auto Hurt by Car

An automobile carrying six persons was struck by a northbound 116th Street cross-town trolley car at Columbus Avenue and 104th Street yesterday afternoon. Of the six in the machine, the only one to escape injury was a six-month-old baby.

The car was owned and driven by Hyman Mares, of 1667 Lexington Avenue. He sustained a broken nose and bruises. Mrs. Mares, forty-two years old, was the most severely injured. She was taken to St. Luke's Hospital, where it was found she had a fractured breast bone, internal injuries and a possible fracture of the skull.

Wets Win at Westfield, N. J.

WESTFIELD, N. J., May 18.—In the local option election to-day, in a total of 1,458 votes, the wets cast 805 and the dries 653. The wet majority was 152.

Lusignan and made the acquaintance of M. Laubouff, who was then working on his plans for a submersible vessel. D'Equieville became highly interested in the submarine boat problem, and sought the acquaintance of M. Goubet, who was also working on submarines. His work in Toulon was sought in the submarine boat problem, and sought the acquaintance of M. Goubet, who was also working on submarines.

Meanwhile he was busy making friends in the Ministry of Marine, and in 1901 there suddenly and most unexpectedly appeared in France a book, the Marquis d'Equieville, that quoted from the secret documents of the French Ministry of Marine on the developments of the submarine problem. At this time the Spaniard found it convenient to make another trip to Germany, but he was back again the next year, and in 1903 the plans for the Aligrette, the first French submarine, invented by Laubouff, disappeared from the French Ministry of Marine. The plans of the Goubet disappeared at the same time.

Submarine Plans Stolen

Two years later, in 1905, the first German submarine was launched from the Germania yards at Kiel. D'Equieville was proclaimed as the inventor.

Amiral Hautefeuille, who investigated the case in 1903 and 1905, believes the Spaniard had the help of a disloyal French naval officer in stealing the plans. He said:

"D'Equieville about 1903 was close friends with a French naval officer who had been dismissed from the service because of his drinking. But this man was very highly connected and still had entrée, day and night, to the Ministry of Marine. By reason of his habits this officer was constantly in need of money, and he took advantage of the ease with which he could enter the ministry to take from a drawer in the office of the Navy General Staff the plans of the Aligrette and the Goubet, giving them to D'Equieville to sell to the Krupps."

"It goes without saying that the money needed for the plans was divided between the two men. The thefts in the Ministry of Marine went on from 1900 to 1903. Generally the papers reappeared at the end of three or four weeks, after they had been copied in Germany."

"The French officer came to a tragic end, which looked very much like suicide. As a matter of fact, he knew he was under suspicion. D'Equieville, on the contrary, continued his career of adventure."

It is believed that the Spaniard received $2,000 in cash for the submarine plans and a contract for 5 per cent on the contract price for all submarines built by the Krupps or under their plans. For more than ten years he worked as a submarine engineer for the Krupps and at Fiume, and is credited with having made a fortune of $800,000 in that time.

Immediately on the outbreak of the war D'Equieville, with magnificent insolence, returned to France and sought naturalization as a French subject. He went before the magistrate of the XVII Arrondissement of Paris, who knew nothing of D'Equieville's history, and presented his papers. They showed that the Spaniard's father, Toussaint Vincent Victor d'Equieville, was born French, but lost his French citizenship by taking military service in Spain in 1835. To support this he had his father's birth certificate, that of his grandfather and a document showing his father's military service in Spain.

D'Equieville did not have his own birth certificate, but presented in its place a certificate from the Spanish Consulate in Paris, dated August 7, 1914. There were some very evident errors on the birth certificate of the father and the certificate from the Spanish Consulate had no value under French law, but the credulous magistrate made no question and twenty-four later d'Equieville was a French citizen.

The next thing he was in the military automobile service in Paris and began again to make friends in high places, trusting in eleven years of absence to make him forgotten. He seems to have been successful, for in February, 1915, the engineer for Krupps was chosen by the Ministry of War to head a secret mission to England. But the English had not forgotten him, and he was sent back to France without delay. Still, his friends in high places served

Passaic Mayor Asks Dr. Luck's Resignation

Boar of Education Member Accused of Un-American Utterances

PASSAIC, N. J., May 18.—Mayor George N. Seger to-day wrote to Dr. Paul Luck requesting his resignation as a member of the Board of Education of Passaic because of his alleged un-American utterances. The Mayor's letter says:

"Your recent utterances as quoted in the local and metropolitan papers cannot be construed to be other than un-American. The public schools of our country are strictly American institutions, and one who is not in sympathy with all they stand for cannot serve them fully and loyally."

"I respectfully request that you tender your resignation as a member of the Board of Education at your earliest opportunity."

When Dr. Luck was asked over the telephone if he was going to resign he said:

"I am not going to talk any more."
